Old-time photo albums and present-day yearbooks are not as far apart as the years which separate them. Both items are permanent reminders of friendships and events, special and commonplace. Only the settings and costumes differ.

In this 1973 edition of the SHIELD, the staff has included some reminders of bygone days, called attention to students and staff members who collect antiques, and spotlighted others whose present activities are only modern versions of old pastimes, illustrating the wisdom of the Frenchman who once wrote, "The more things change, the more they remain the same."

BEFORE LEAVING!

Jacques arrives in Canton Oct. 25, and is welcomed by Dean Robert Smolich.

From the Republic of Zaire in the heart of Africa, Jacques-Rene Kuyena came to Spoon River College. In less than a month he had made many friends in the college and in the community.

Dr. Reuben Diambomba, his brother-in-law who was a former exchange student at Canton High School, recommended that Jacques enroll at SRC to "acquire some useful experiences in studying and living in another cultural environment."

Jacques, who had studied English for four years, entered American college life with apparent enjoyment. He attended business and communications classes, spent hours reading American newspapers and magazines in the Learning Resource Center, increased his formal English vocabulary in the reading lab, and acquired a collection of American idioms and slang phrases from his new college friends. A soccer player in high school, he found it easy to become a basketball fan and rarely missed a game. He attended speech contests, having been active in debate and dramatics in high school, and went to church and cultural events in the Canton area.

Adjustment to American college life was not difficult for SRC's only foreign student with one exception — he had his first experience with snow and sub-freezing weather here. His home city, Kinshasa, is not far south of the equator in Africa.

New experiences for SRC's African student (known here as "Jack") included attending basketball games to cheer for the Crusaders (at left), tossing his first snowball, and learning about the art of bee-keeping from Warren Potter, director of student services, as co-student Debbie Dewester looks on.

Governance Planning

CARL McCAUSLAND

Bishop, Bradshaw, Balagna

Through the combined efforts of representatives from the board of trustees, administration, faculty and student body, progress was made toward restructuring the way Spoon River College is to be governed in the future.

Meeting regularly throughout the year, representatives wrote a constitution which they believe will provide basic principles of operation in which all SRC participates. Ideally, every group will have a voice and be free to speak with impunity.

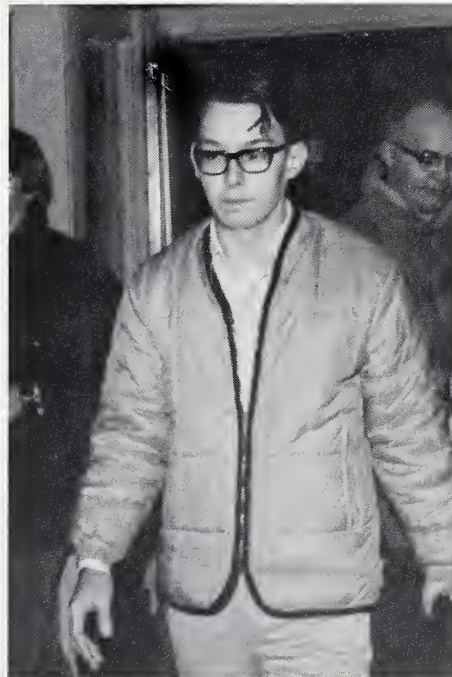

Carl McCausland, a vo-tech faculty member, served as chairman of the planning group.

Dr. J. K. Welch, Board president, addressed the student body.

Students and faculty assembled in a local theater to learn more about a new form of governance for SRC.

YEAR OF ACTIVITIES

Besides continuing the traditional events such as Casino Night, free movies and Crusaders' Days, the Student Senate arranged for students to use YMCA facilities as part of the activity fee benefits.

By careful budgeting and with the help of the chief advisor to the Senate, Warren Potter, Student Services director, the Senate expected to be able to host the May Ball and finish the year "in the black."

Student Nurses Sing
at Traditional Capping Ceremony

ACHIEVERS

Competing for honors in the Student Achievement judging were: (clockwise from above) Deon Lock, Vicki Stremmel, Terri Maxfield, Dale Lock, John Levingston, Craig McLaughlin, Walt Diefendorf and Nancy Oakman.

ACADEMICS

Frank Diefendorf
Automotive Mechanics

Diefendorf's grandson, Tim, points to a cylinder record producing music on a turn-of-the-century Edison phonograph, one of "Pa-Pa's" prized antiques.

Sandra Weeks
Physical Education

Caning antique chairs is of absorbing interest to the coach of women's athletics.

Daisy Coty
Speech

An affection for lovely old furniture ranks second only to Miss Coty's love of theater.

Martha Strode
English

Mrs. Strode adds a small Flag to her collection of campaign buttons and other Americana.

Kathryn Doubet
English

An old walnut frame was one of her finds when Mrs. Doubet went "antique-ing."

Long ago, pharmacies stocked unusual items besides "miracle cures." Nursing staff members visited this "mini-museum" in the Ed Lewis Jr. home.

Practical Nursing Program

Barbara Mallard Coordinator

Wauneta Salter (center) and Clara-lee Pollitt (right), Instructors (Not present: Lois Walfgana, Instructor)

Robert Balagna
Automotive Mechanics

Roses, like cars, respond to tender loving care,
Balagna has found.

Farrell Till
English

A love for good dogs had led Till to raise and train several Grand Champion Dachshunds, including

Joyce Etherton
Secretarial Science

When she wasn't planting tulip bulbs, Mrs. Etherton spent the sunny fall days checking the 18 trees her husband had placed in their yard.

Edward Georgieff
Athletic Director
Physical Education

Gary King
Chemistry

Coach Georgieff finds golf fun . . . And so does Dr. King

Faye Hedin
Psychology

And in good weather, Mrs. Hedin is also an enthusiastic golfer. But she also knows how to handle a gun. The hunting trophy shown here, the first deer she ever shot, is evidence.

Jesse Bradshaw
Farm Machine Technology

Many sports interest him, but bowling is obviously "his" sport.

William Durley
Farm Machine Technology

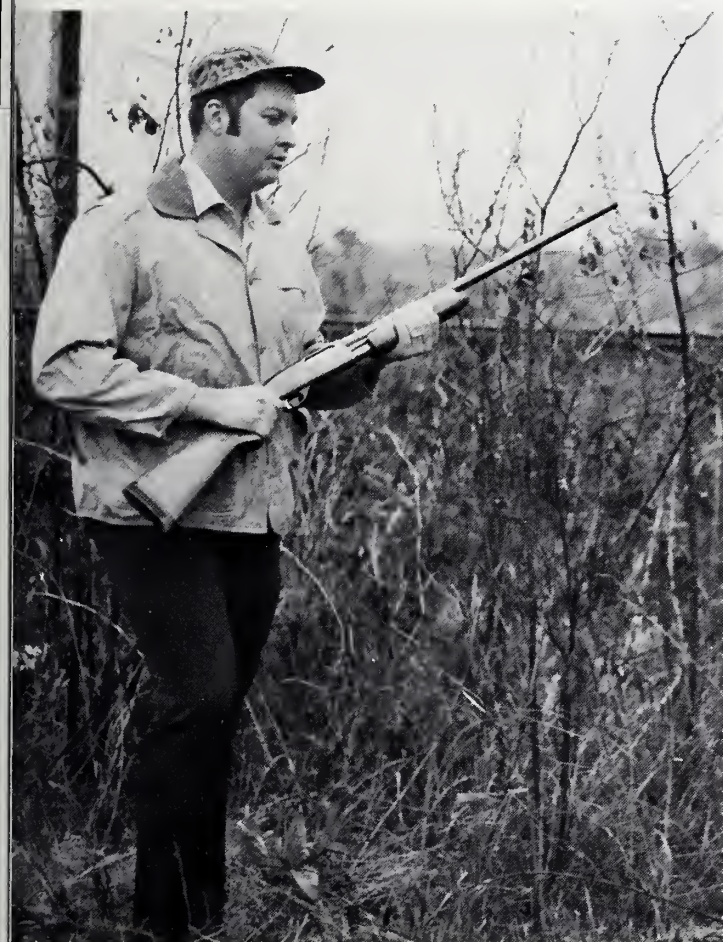

Durley rebuilds second-hand airplanes then flies them. This plane is the 14th in the series.

Charles (Bud) Kuehn
Data Processing

Kuehn restores an old player piano
"purely for pleasure."

Brian Telander
Farm Machine Technology

Telander is ready for the hunting season — needing only something to hunt.

Betty Starasta
Art

As she reaches for a brush, Artist Starasta shows she remembers her tennis follow-through.

Mervin Smart
Physical Science

When he's not in the lab, Smart enjoys playing tennis from early spring until late fall.

Walter G. Peters
Earth Science

Peters is surrounded by hundreds of slides he has prepared to use with his talks on geology.

Roland G. Pettit
Agricultural Management Technology
Agricultural Supply

Besides the hours as classroom instructor, Pettit meets with the Advisory Council and serves as president of the Spoon River Assn. for Higher Education.

Ketric R. Klingman
Music

Popular song leader for school and community events, Klingman is also an avid sports fan.

Philip E. Gover
Secretarial Science Technology

Visitors to the Gover "rec" room always get a friendly greeting from "Lum", the family pet.

Edward R. Kaiser
Farm Machine Technology
Ag. Management Technology

Kaiser likes all sports, especially golf. He also likes "good" jokes.

William D. Wilson
Biology

Although he finds little cause to break into song in the lab, Wilson's voice is heard regularly in a Canton church choir.

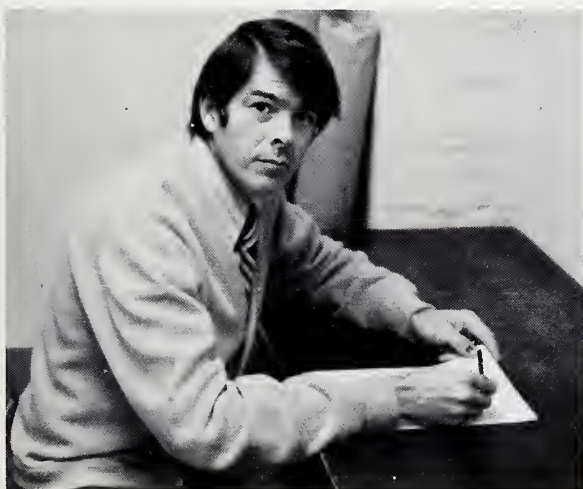

George Starasta
Machine Design Technology

From the simplest to the most complex, all machines fascinate Starasta.

Josef Hickersberger
Business, German

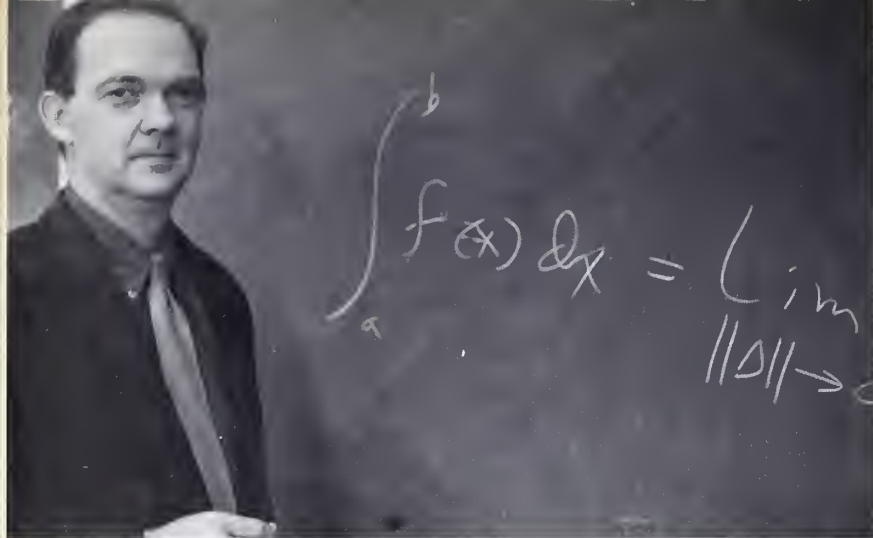

Sherry Babcock and Chris Grissom evidently find some aspect of economics amusing.

Robert W. Anderson
Civil Engineering Technology

Anderson "practices what he preaches" with Anderson Associates during off-duty hours.

William Lane
Mathematics

With the same precision he exhibits in math class, Lane can stow away gear for a family camping trip or play the organ for graduation.

Mildred Patterson
Sociology

Among Mrs. Patterson's interests are antique collecting and knitting.

Moneta Bedwell
Audio-Visual Div., LRC

Vicki Stremmel gets some help from Mrs. Bedwell.

Janet Prater
Biology

Mrs. Prater enjoys helping her Phi Theta Kappa students but is equally fascinated by "life on the farm."

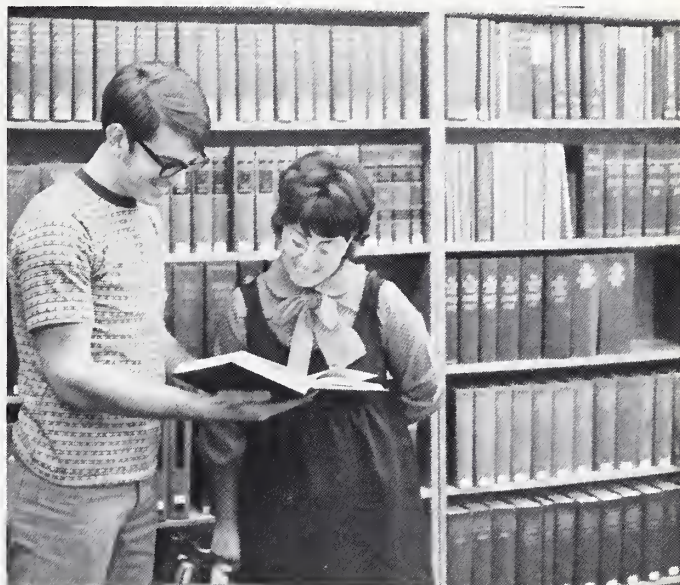

E. John Smith
Mathematics

When snow and ice prohibits taking long rides on his 15-speed bike, Smith exercises, watches tv, and works out chess problems — simultaneously.

Carl McCausland
Agricultural Management Technology
Agricultural Supply

McCausland likes to hunt, to conduct school board meetings, and to entertain in the faculty lounge.

FACULTY KIDS — Melissa Black, Eddie Georgieff and Jodi Rowe are prepared for a very long basketball game.

STUDENT-FACULTY RAP SESSION, one of a series.

Ada Edley
President's Secretary

Carol Duckwiler, Bookkeeper

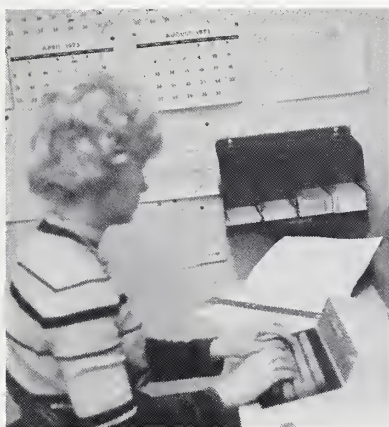

Collecting items pertaining to firefighting is of absorbing interest to Carol.

Charlotte Phillips
Student Services Sec'y

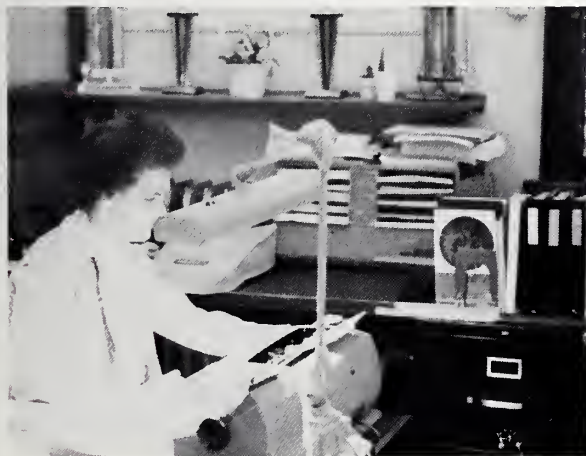

Mrs. Phillips has a lively hobby, her granddaughter, Elizabeth Fordyce.

Janet Flynn
Assistant to Director of Data Processing

Marcia Williams
Sec'y, Continuing Education

Norma Meads
Academic Affairs Sec'y

Peggy Buskirk
Vo-Tech Education Sec'y

(Doubling here as Open House registrar).

Dr. Harrison Eller
Business

Richard Switzer
Social Science

Virginia Vassen
Recorder

Helen Lawson
Reading

Cyril C. Cavanaugh
Social Science

Four collectors are assembled on this page: Cavanaugh, jokes; Guyton, lead crystal; Gardner, English horns; Stroman, owls (but that is Effie Grace, the pug, with her).

Marian Guyton
English

Willa Stroman
Bookstore Manager

Janet Gardner
English

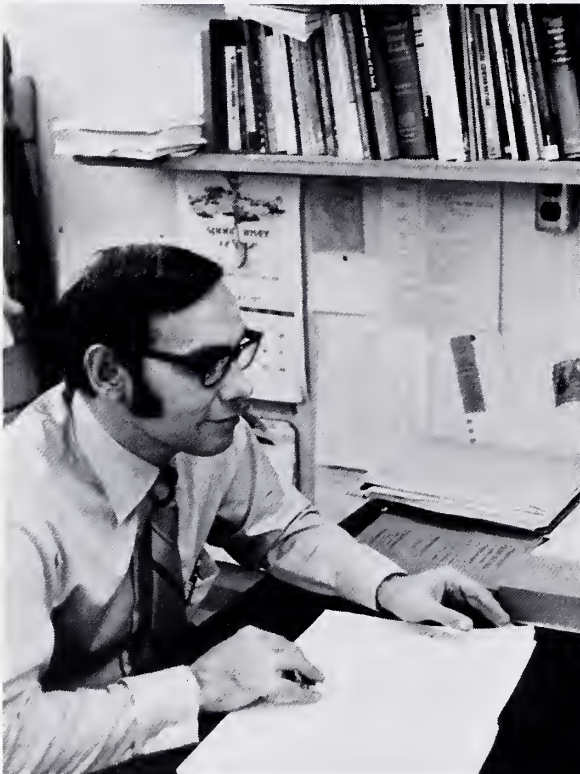

Salty Sam? Na, Carl Jackson, instructor of business, whose favorite activity is not a year-round sport.

Faculty committee meetings are extremely exciting.

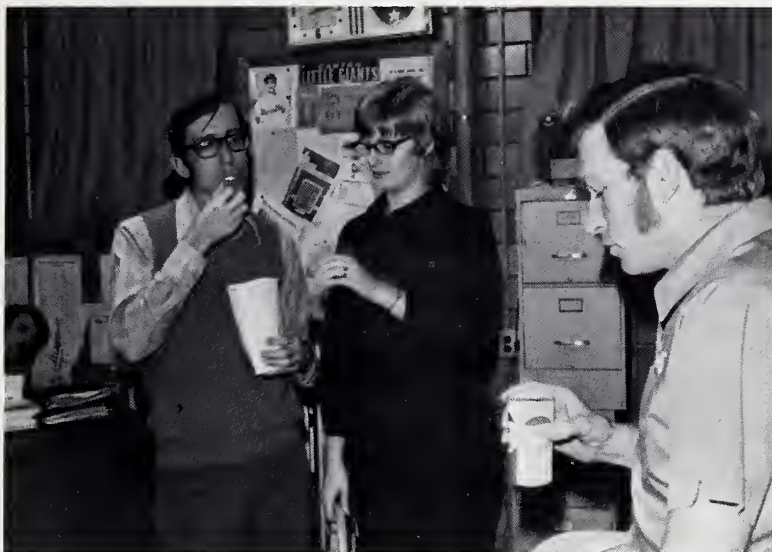

Robert Harland
Biology

Charles Black
Mathematics

Halftime at a Crusader game meant pop and popcorn for the Gene Ethertons and Charlie Black.

Jim Raridon
Physical Education
Evening Division

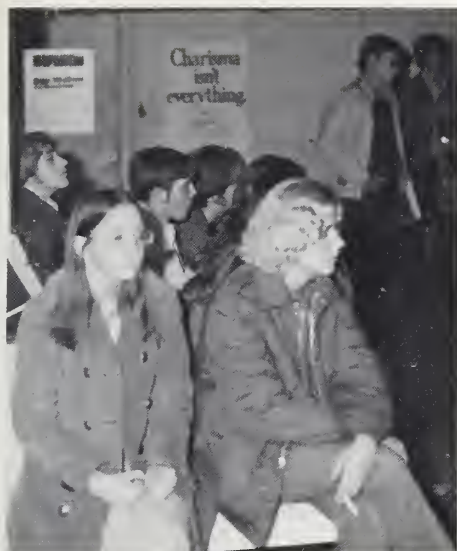

Harold Wheeler
Farm Machine Tech

What we do today is tomorrow's history. Therefore, this yearbook is a collector's item in a sense because it contains glimpses of life at Spoon River College as it was in 1972-73.

With costumes and props we have tried to bring back memories of the past. At the same time we are looking forward to the time when we will move from our temporary campus to our new permanent campus, to life in buildings of modern architectural design.

However, let us not forget that like a community or a church, now or in days gone by, a school is made up of different kinds of people. And that is what this, the 12th edition of the SHIELD, is about . . . people.

A dozen people with different talents and varied interests have combined their efforts to produce this yearbook. As editor, I wish to thank my staff, the college Student Senate for its support, and Dave Lewis for his professional assistance.
